73rd Frankfurter Buchmesse: Back to business, but not (yet) back to normal

Canadian Governor General, Her Excellency the Right Honourable Mary May Simon opens Frankfurter Buchmesse | 2,000 companies from 80 countries exhibit on site | Spotlight on over 300 authors | Guest of Honour Canada creates first hybrid pavilion | Focus topic: "How do we want to live our lives?" | International industry leaders participate in "Frankfurt Studio – Inside Publishing" trade programme

Two thousand companies from 80 countries have come to Frankfurt as exhibitors in keeping with the motto "Re:connect – Welcome back to Frankfurt". In the coming days, the spotlight will be on more than 300 international authors, who will be discussing their new works of fiction and nonfiction, their debuts, poetry and reportage. Two thousand media representatives from around the world will report on all the action take place in the exhibition halls. "The desire for in-person interactions is once again bringing the international book and publishing industry together in Frankfurt. The 73rd Frankfurter Buchmesse puts the focus on an industry that has shown itself to be resilient, creative and innovative during the pandemic. 'Back to business', however, does not mean things are now 'back to normal': the book fair will look different this year from what we've known in the past. However, trade visitors and exhibitors from many countries are able to exhibit in Frankfurt this year. Those who cannot attend due to travel restrictions, could participate the Frankfurt Conference and the Masterclasses last week and will be able to watch 'Frankfurt Studio – Inside Publishing', a compelling digital trade programme in which many of the industry's opinion leaders will have their say," said Juergen Boos, President of Frankfurter Buchmesse, at the press conference opening the book fair.

"The pandemic has been one of the biggest stress tests in history and we have passed it with flying colours. Publishers, bookstores and book logistic companies have worked hard to stay close to their clients and ensure that books reached people despite these challenging times", said Karin Schmidt-Friderichs, Chairwoman of Börsenverein (German Publishers & Booksellers Association), today at the press conference to mark the opening of Frankfurter Buchmesse.

"Social distancing did not mean distancing from books. People used the time at home to read more often. Books can fulfil important needs in challenging times: They provide answers to pressing questions, giving substantiated information in a clear and comprehensive format. A book can broaden our view, open up new worlds and show us other ways of living. It can offer food for thought, give courage and hope."

The 73rd Frankfurter Buchmesse has been made possible by generous financial support from the German government's NEUSTART KULTUR programme. "The pandemic has had an existential impact on the entire trade fair industry. To that extent, we are very pleased that Frankfurter Buchmesse is one of the first international book fairs to take place once again, albeit in a somewhat altered form in this transitional year. In 2021, Germany's Commissioner for Culture and the Media, Prof. Monika Grütters, has provided the book fair with substantial funding from the NEUSTART KULTUR programme. That has allowed us to give our exhibitors planning security. In addition, a large part of the funding has been or will be used to implement our hygiene and security plan, to develop and improve sustainable digital offerings and to make it possible for exhibitors and visitors to attend," said Boos.

Frankfurter Buchmesse – safety first

The top priority is ensuring the safety of all participants while they are at the fair. Admission to the exhibition grounds is only possible with a personalised ticket and in keeping with the "3G rule". Visitors can only enter after showing that they meet the relevant requirements: they must prove that they are fully vaccinated against, have recovered from or have tested negative for Covid-19. Information on the hygiene and safety plan is updated regularly and can be accessed at buchmesse.de/en/visit/hygiene-concept.

Guest of Honour Canada: Singular Plurality – Singulier Pluriel

Following the press conference, media representatives were given a preview of the Guest of Honour Pavilion in the Forum, Level 1, which will be officially opened on Tuesday evening by Canada's Governor General, Her Excellency Mary May Simon. Visitors can expect to make their way through an installation that features elements from the Canadian landscape: water, light, minerals, soil, mountains, air. The pavilion — which will have a virtual counterpart this year for the first time — showcases the creativity and diversity of Canada's literary and cultural scene. A total of 60 Canadian authors and illustrators will give shape to the country's literary programme — including eight outstanding literary figures who will represent Canada in person in Frankfurt this year: Michael Crummey, Michel Jean, Dany Laferrière, Catherine Mavrikakis, Paul Seesequasis, Vivek Shraya, Kim Thúy and Nancy Vo. In addition to readings and interactive events involving these eight artists on the fairgrounds, over 50 authors will participate in a wide range of digital events, including virtual appearances by Margaret Atwood and Joséphine Bacon at the opening ceremony. The programme not only showcases the Guest of Honour's vastness, but also the diversity of its culture, languages and traditions. Under the motto "Singular Plurality", the topics "Language and Culture", "Indigenous, Political and Social Issues", "Space and Territories", "Children's and Young Adult Literature", "Women in Literature", "LGBTQ2 Perspectives" and "The Environment" will also be addressed. The exhibition "Books on ... Canada" in the Guest of Honour Pavilion will present nearly 400 new titles on Canada from 165 publishers.

On 20 October, this year's Guest of Honour will present "Canada Night" in the Festhalle — an evening of literary discussions in which authors and illustrators will participate both virtually from remote locations and in person onstage. During the week of the fair, Canada will also present its cultural programme at sites throughout Frankfurt. The events will include projections, interactive activities and illuminated installations that highlight the country's Singular Plurality.

For the first time in the history of the book fair, a Guest of Honour will also welcome the world using a virtual Guest of Honour Pavilion. The virtual pavilion is a collaborative project that showcases both Canada's literature and the digital know-how of its creative and technology industries. buchmesse.de/en/highlights/guest-honour-canada

Focus topic "How do we want to live our lives?"

The question "How do we want to live our lives?" runs like a thread through the programme of this year's book fair. The ARD Book Fair Stage in the Festhalle will present 75 events with high-profile guests addressing topics such as justice, sustainability, diversity, living and working, education and digitalisation. Participants will include Stefan Aust, Alina Bronsky, Bülent Ceylan, Jenny Erpenbeck, Elke Heidenreich, Julia Franck, Hallgrímur Helgasson, Prof. Dietrich Grönemeyer, Carolin Kebekus, Daniela Krien, Mai Thi Nguyen-Kim, Helen Macdonald, LiBeraturpreis-winner Pilar Quintana, Nicole Seifert, Edgar Selge, and Sahra Wagenknecht.

Television broadcaster ARTE will also take up this central topic in a documentary that follows several thought leaders as they develop a shared vision in just a short amount of time. The participants come from the worlds of art, culture, science, business, innovation and education. They include Sophia Fritz, Dmitry Glukhovsky, Katharina Grosse, Francis Kéré, Raul Krauthausen, Van Bo Le-Mentzel, Mithu Sanyal and Daniel Schreiber. Isabell Šuba is the director. ARTE will be documenting the entire process in the broadcast "Wie wollen wir leben?" The project was presented at today's press conference opening Frankfurter Buchmesse.

Frankfurt am Main, 19 October 2021

What's new at Frankfurter Buchmesse 2021?

Every book fair is different. To help you keep track of it all during this very special year, we have listed the most important developments for you here.

WIPO's ABC International Excellence Award for Accessible Publishing

The winners of this prestigious annual prize will be announced for the first time at Frankfurter Buchmesse, on 20 October 2021. The prize honours a publisher and a project initiative that have distinguished themselves through outstanding efforts and success in promoting the accessibility of commercial e-books or other digital publications for people who are blind, visually impaired or otherwise reading disabled. The award ceremony will take place during the event "Accessibility Now – Will you be ready for the European Accessibility Act in 2025?" (20 October 2021, 3:00 pm, at Frankfurt Studio: Inside Publishing), which is being jointly organised by the Federation of European Publishers, Frankfurter Buchmesse, the International Publishers Association and the World Intellectual Property Organization and which is part of the EU project ALDUS UP.

Exhibitor Campaign Re:connect

The desire is great – throughout the publishing industry and among culture fans around the world. Namely, to meet inspiring people again. To discover new business opportunities. We are giving expression to this desire and focussing on the "again" aspect in the fair's motto: re:connect, re:boost publishing, re:activate culture. We are using the 2021 book fair to celebrate this reunion and are looking forward to welcoming exhibitors from more than 70 countries to Frankfurt as we come together for the largest international industry gathering. After all, personal interactions are what give rise to those unexpected business opportunities, surprising moments and innovative ideas which make Frankfurter Buchmesse the global hub of the publishing industry.

The #fbm21 app – with ISBN scanner function

The Frankfurter Buchmesse app has become an indispensable part of the book fair experience. Practical, fast and always up to date, it shows events and what's happening. And thanks to the personal appointment calendar, with reminder function, you never lose track of what's going on. In addition, the Matchmaking tool for trade visitors is becoming more popular every year. New for 2021 is the ISBN scanner on the start page. In a matter of seconds, it scans a book's ISBN number, which is then saved in a personal favourites list, allowing it to be retrieved at any time.

The Frankfurter Buchmesse app is available for iOS and Android and can be downloaded free of charge. buchmesse.de/en/app

ARD Book Fair Stage: How do we want to live?

Under the motto "How do we want to live? Our stage for the future", the ARD Book Fair Stage in the Festhalle will host talks every day of the fair with high-profile guests on essential topics such as justice, sustainability, diversity, living and working, education and digitalisation. ARTE production "How do we want to live?"

How do we want to live? This is one of the major themes of this year's book fair. In cooperation with Frankfurt Buchmesse, television broadcaster ARTE is taking advantage of the occasion to invite different thought leaders to develop a shared vision. Not only will they discuss the topic by exchanging ideas and examining each other's point of view, they will also come to an agreement. This is what will distinguish this happening from all other discussions and panel events: the goal of developing a joint publication, a manifesto, a statement of how we want to live together, and doing so within eight hours in a confined space, namely on board the historic ship Backschaft. The participants will come from the fields of art, culture, academia, business, innovation and education. ARTE will be accompanying them and their process in its programme "How do we want to live?" by director Isabell Šuba (to be broadcast on ARTE on 23 October 2021, at 11:10 pm, as part of ARTE's focus on this year's book fair). The result will be presented at the opening press conference of the Frankfurt Book Fair (19 October 2021). The happening will be recorded on 18 October 2021 in Frankfurt am Main. Participants will include Sophia Fritz, Dmitry Glukhovsky, Katharina Grosse, Francis Kéré, Van Bo L-Mentzel, Raul Krauthausen, Mithu Sanyal, and Daniel Schreiber.

The "virtual pavilion" will offer visitors who are unable to travel to Frankfurt a world of virtual experiences comparable to those they would have if they were physically present. The innovative pavilion will enrich the presentation of Canada's literature – both for visitors on the fairgrounds and those who can only be there remotely. The app for the pavilion is being brought to life by Toronto-based Majestic Media (webuildawesome.ca) and designed by Gonzalo Soldi, Creative Director and Co-founder of mirari. The virtual pavilion will present both Canadian literature and the digital know-how of Canada's creative and technology industries.

The Hof

The popular networking series The Hof will commence again on 30 September 2021, and the kick-off will feature Frankfurter Buchmesse President Juergen Boos discussing what's planned for the 2021 fair. As was the case last year, the digital sessions, moderated by journalist Felix Zeltner, will bring together the global publishing community at the event's virtual bar, accompanied by live music. The format has evolved from a Zoom meeting to an after-hours hybrid experience. For example, interview guest Andrew Nurnberg will be joining The Hof at 7 pm on Tuesday, 19 October, live from the Frankfurter Hof hotel, after which the series is named. The Brazilian Publishers Association is moving its stand party to the virtual space and will celebrate at The Hof on Thursday, 21 October, at 5 pm. With THE ARTS+, Frankfurter Buchmesse is once again making space for media art and moving images, for innovative media developments on the future of the creative industries worldwide. THE ARTS+ area can be found in the Forum, Level 0 from 20 to 24 October 2021.

B3 Biennial of the Moving Image has been a strategic partner of THE ARTS+ since 2018. This year, it will once again be showcasing selected entries from the programme of the B3 Moving Image Forum competition. For example, the Russian digital artist Faraday (Sergey Barabanschikoff) engages with the current hype surrounding so-called crypto art. In a work titled RUSSIAN DOLLS, he creates an NFT (Non-Fungible Token) series based on traditional matryoshka figures. In their fictitious web series CTRL ALL DEL, students at Zurich's University of the Arts take a look at climate change and a destroyed earth in the year 2091. In his animated series TACTILE PALACES, American artist Jonathan Monaghan illuminates the subconscious fears relating to technology and consumerism.

The opening of B3 took place on 15 October in the Astor Film Lounge, an event that included the presentation of the B3 BEN Awards. In 2021, two artists from the international film scene were honoured: the American director and three-time Oscar winner Oliver Stone and the filmmaker and author Hito Steyerl. Until 24 October, B3 will be offering all film, art and media professionals a platform for innovation, exchange and visibility.

MUNCH, Rich and Famous Films, TAICCA, Love for Livres, Jaktent, Kreativwirtschaft Hessen, SODEC and Telefilm Canada are also partners of THE ARTS+ 2021 and have likewise planned programme content for the Forum.

On 22 October 2021, the brand-new MUNCH Museum will open its doors on Oslo's harbour promenade, showcasing the world's largest collection of works by Edvard Munch. The museum will offer its visitors a completely new perspective on the artist's life and art. At THE ARTS+, the cultural institution will be introducing itself.

In the Immenhof Movie Lounge, Rich and Famous Films will be showing the trailer and exclusive clips from Immenhof – Das große Versprechen (Immenhof – The Big Promise), the new entry in the Immenhof film series which will premiere in German cinemas on 6 January 2022. Several of the main cast (including Leia Holtwick, Moritz Bächerling and Ella Paffgen) will be signing autographs at the Immenhof stand.

TAICCA (Taiwan Creative Content Agency) and the Taipei Book Fair Foundation will present "The Scent of Taiwan". Aroma therapy expert M. June WEN has developed five scents from Taiwan's native plants and trees that express fundamental elements of Taiwanese culture.

The objective of Love for Livres is both to motivate people to read and to create better lives and a better world by focusing on books. Combining fiction and neuroscience, the project helps young people who are socially disadvantaged or affected by health issues. Its ongoing development is supported by Europe Creative and Erasmus, two programmes funded by the European Commission.

Jakarta Content Week (Jaktent) is part of Indonesia's vibrant cultural scene and will also put in an appearance at THE ARTS+. Organised by Yayasan Tujuhbelasribu Pulau Imaji (The Seventeen Thousand Islands of Imagination Foundation or YTPI) in cooperation with Frankfurter Buchmesse, the international festival for creative content will be held in 2021 for the second time. Jakarta Content Week 2021 will take place in a hybrid format from 10 to 14 November 2021, welcoming an expected 20,000 participants from 68 countries, along with 400 speakers and 200 events. Marieke Lucas Rijneveld, winner of the 2020 International Booker Prize, has announced she will attend, as will bestselling author Matt Haig.

Part of HA Hessen Agentur GmbH, the Kreativwirtschaft Hessen bureau is once again organising the collective stand at THE ARTS+ for Kreativwirtschaft Hessen on behalf of the state's Economics Ministry. The organisers want to increase the visibility of the creative potential present in Hesse beyond the state's borders while creating a space for interdisciplinary exchange. Participants will include Design to Business, Deutscher Designer Club, Hessen Design, Historisches Museum Frankfurt, RAY Fotografieprojekte, WI Bank and the Serious Games developers accitio, EduTecs, The Vatrix and H.O.P.E.

As part of Canada's presence as 2021 Guest of Honour, Telefilm Canada and the Société de développement des entreprises culturelles du Québec (SODEC) have organised a wide-ranging programme for THE ARTS+. One highlight is LOOP – an interactive art installation for the public, inspired by literature from Québec. The artwork consists of 12 giant cylinders in which visitors can use their own movements to animate a series of static figures. Supported by the government of Québec, LOOP is being presented in Frankfurt in cooperation with the NODE Forum for Digital Arts. ekumen.com/loop

The installation will be on display on the fairgrounds (20 – 24 October) and in the city at Rathenauplatz (20 October to 1 November).

STARTS Day at Frankfurter Buchmesse

On Friday, 22 October, Frankfurter Buchmesse will be organising STARTS Day for the first time. This year, Frankfurter Buchmesse became a partner for STARTS — an initiative of the European Commission whose goal is to link technology and artistic practice more closely. The focus is on people and projects that can help Europe overcome its social, environmental and economic challenges. On STARTS Day, ideas for responding to these issues from the worlds of art, technology and science will be presented at Frankfurt Studio: Inside Publishing.

When they are online, people are constantly exposed to different addictive interfaces, face-recognition technology and data capitalism. In the immersive artwork "On View", the viewer also becomes a participant at the centre of the artistic experience who interacts in a virtual world – without knowing it. The experimental artwork "On View" sheds light on the things that remain hidden in unread fine print, leading to a discussion of the use of technologies such as AI and machine learning, as well as data protection, privacy and surveillance capitalism.

FAQ 2021 — As of 15 October 2021

Our answers to your questions about hygiene and safety measures at Frankfurter Buchmesse 2021

Hygiene and safety in general

What does the hygiene and safety plan for the book fair look like?

You will find an overview of the hygiene and safety plan for Frankfurter Buchmesse here. It was developed together with Messe Frankfurt and approved by the City of Frankfurt's public health authorities.

Which rules must I comply with as an exhibitor?

We have listed the applicable rules and recommendations for exhibitors at www.buchmesse.de/en/corona-requirements. Please read this page carefully — it will be updated regularly — and ensure that you take all the points into consideration as you plan your presence at the fair. To help you keep track of changes as they occur, we have summarized the latest developments at the bottom of the page.

Admission

Who is permitted to enter the fairgrounds?

Only people who are fully vaccinated, who have recovered from COVID-19 or who have recently tested negative will be admitted to the book fair in Frankfurt. In addition to a valid admission ticket, you will therefore also need:

- proof that you are fully vaccinated against SARS-CoV-2 in accordance with the requirements laid out in Germany by the Paul Ehrlich Institute, or
- proof that you have recovered from an infection with COVID-19 that occurred more than 28 days or less than 6 months ago,
or

- a certificate showing you have tested negative for COVID-19 (corona rapid test) that is not older than 24 hours on the day you intend to be present on the fairgrounds.

Please have your ID card or passport ready for inspection.

Your admission ticket is only valid if you have provided additional information in advance for official contact tracing. The relevant online form will be sent to you via e-mail after you have purchased or accessed your ticket.

How often and with which vaccine must I be vaccinated for me to participate in Frankfurter Buchmesse without having to be tested?

You must have had all of the shots required to gain full protection from one of the vaccines approved by the EU. At least two weeks must have passed since your last vaccination.

A list of the approved vaccines and the necessary number of shots can be found on the website of the Paul Ehrlich Institute.

Do children also have to be specially tested for admission to the fair? What proof do they have to present?

Not as a rule. All children who go to school in Germany are tested regularly, so it is sufficient for school children to present their test booklet. The test booklet is also valid at weekends and during school holidays as current negative proof according to § 3 of the Hessian Corona Protection Ordinance. For pupils from other federal states where there is no corresponding test booklet, the pupil's ID card is sufficient, as testing concepts exist in all states.

Children under 6 years of age and children not yet enrolled in school are exempt from compulsory testing.

Will tests for COVID-19 be available at the entrance to the fairgrounds?

Test centres will be set up in front of the City and the Torhaus entrances, where visitors can have a rapid antigen test at their own expense. Information and opening hours: corona-test-centres-fbm-2021.pdf (buchmesse.de)

How will admission be monitored? Do visitors need a special app such as the Luca app?

The entire admissions-monitoring procedure, including scanning of entry documents, will be contactless to the greatest extent possible. The entrance areas in which admissions and security checks take place will be greatly expanded to avoid crowding.

When entering the fairgrounds, certificates documenting vaccination/recovery/testing will be checked first, after which entrance tickets will be scanned.

The Luca app will not be used.

Should publishing-house employees expect a long wait when they arrive at the fair in the morning?

The admission process will naturally be more complex due to the added restrictions. In terms of staffing and organisation, we are working with Messe Frankfurt to ensure that everything goes as smoothly as possible. Nonetheless, there may be a wait at peak admission times.

As in the past, exhibitors with an exhibitor pass will be admitted to the fairgrounds one hour before general opening times (i.e. as of 8 am). We recommend taking advantage of this possibility for early entry to reduce waiting times.

How will ticket sales for visitors be handled? First come, first served?

Ticket sales will take place exclusively online. Tickets cannot be purchased at the fairgrounds. A limited number of tickets will be available for each day of the fair. Once all tickets for a particular day have been sold, it will no longer be possible to purchase a ticket for that day.

What can exhibitors do if authors would like to have a ticket at short notice, but tickets are no longer available for that day?

A certain number of tickets will be reserved each day for exhibitors' last-minute needs. It will therefore be possible to use the exhibitor ticket portal to order ticket codes at short notice.

Will the general public be admitted to the fair on Friday this year?

Yes, as of 2 pm. Opening the fair to the general public on Friday will compensate for the limited number of tickets available on the weekend. Book sales will also be permitted on Friday.

Fairgrounds in general

Will I be required to wear a mask during the fair?

Yes. Wearing a mask is generally required on all days of the fair in all indoor areas and in those outdoor areas where it is not possible to maintain the required distance (waiting and entrance areas, highly frequented areas, etc.).

Masks may only be removed in indoor areas, if it is possible to take a seat at a sufficient distance to others or if a safe setting is ensured (some form of protective screen f.e.).

What will be done to ensure that visitors are evenly distributed throughout the exhibition halls?

The generous layout of all hall levels and the limited number of visitors will help prevent the crowding that sometimes occurred in past years. The distribution of visitors over the entire fairgrounds and the adherence to social distancing rules will be monitored by the Operation Security Center using video feeds and by staff specially deployed to enforce the hygiene and safety regulations in the exhibition halls.

Are there outdoor meeting places that can be reserved in advance?

There will be a sufficient amount of outdoor seating for eating and drinking, which can also be used for meeting with others. It will not be possible to reserve seats in these areas.

You can also use the restaurants located on the fairgrounds, which will take reservations, for meetings with others.

At the exhibition stand

How many people may be present at my stand at one time?

The number of people at your stand at any given time may not exceed the number beyond which it is no longer possible to maintain the minimum distance of 1.5 metres between people.

The maximum number depends on the shape and design of the stand. Therefore, when planning your stand, you must set an overall figure and ensure it is not exceeded during the fair.

Numerous examples of stands that conform to the hygiene and safety regulations and the relevant number of permitted visitors can be found in the document Hygiene guidelines for stand construction.

The walkways in the halls are wide enough that you can periodically use a strip (as narrow as possible) along the side of your stand for queuing. Please ensure that minimum distances are maintained, that the rest of the walkway remains free and that neighbouring stands are not obstructed.

May visitors thumb through the books at our stand as in the past? Do books have to be disinfected? Or is it sufficient to use hand disinfectant or distribute disposable gloves?

Our regulations require that hand disinfectant be made available at each stand. It is also recommended that surfaces which frequently come into contact with visitors — such as counters, tables, displays and exhibited items — be sufficiently and regularly cleaned, for example after each time they are touched or used. Since cleaning books in this fashion is not easy, we are following the rules laid out for booksellers in the state of Hesse, which currently do not mandate any restrictions regarding the touching, perusing or disinfecting of books. Each exhibitor can decide whether and to what extent additional measures should be taken — the wearing of gloves, for example, or the periodic replacement of frequently touched items.

Who is responsible for implementing the hygiene and safety plan at the exhibition stand?

As in the past, the exhibitor or stand operator has the right to maintain order and is thus responsible for what takes place at the exhibition stand. This includes implementing the required hygiene and safety measures. To support you in this regard, we have assembled all the relevant information at www.buchmesse.de/en/corona-requirements and are providing a compact checklist that you can use as the basis for your own hygiene rules.

Who will provide the disinfectant for the stand? The fair organisers or publishers?

Exhibitors are responsible for making hand disinfectant available to visitors and staff at exhibition stands. Suitable products can be ordered for a fee from the relevant service provider.

Disinfectant and other hygiene-related articles can be purchased during the fair at the mini-market in front of Hall 4.1.

Who will handle cleaning and disinfection during the fair? Employees of the exhibiting organisation or staff working for the fair?

The environmental and energy fee included in the stand rental covers basic cleaning of the stand after the fair closes each day (vacuuming the floor, emptying waste baskets, wiping all open, horizontal surfaces with disinfectant). Exhibitors are responsible for cleaning during the day. It is possible to order cleaning services from Messe Frankfurt for a fee.

We will be using our own customised stand from past years. Who will check to see if modifications are required for it to comply with the current hygiene and safety plan?

Consult with the firm that constructed your stand, since you are responsible for verifying if it must be adapted to meet the current regulations (see www.buchmesse.de/en/exhibit/health-and-safety). More detailed information with images of sample stands can be found in the document Hygiene guidelines for stand construction. We would be more than happy to answer any specific questions that you or your stand construction firm might have.

How can queues be managed, for example if we are planning a book signing at our stand?

A suitable amount of space must be reserved at the stand to accommodate the expected number of people as they wait. In addition, you may use a strip in the walkway (as narrow as possible) to form a queue along your stand. Please ensure that minimum distances are maintained, that the rest of the walkway remains free and that neighbouring stands are not obstructed. If you are planning an event that is expected to draw a large number of visitors, extra organisational measures should be taken. You can book a slot for one of the signing boxes at the Agora for signings that would exceed the space available at your stand.

Please note that every event held at your stand must be registered with us in advance via a separate online registration form.

Is it sufficient to place tables far enough apart, or do we also have to put up protective screens?

If the tables and chairs can be positioned in a way that maintains the required distance between the people sitting and others walking by, then screens separating the different meeting areas are not required.

Is it necessary to have protective screens, for example on counters, on tables and at the coffee bar?

A protective screen must be installed if the required distance between participants in a meeting cannot be safely maintained. Other measures can also be taken to ensure there is sufficient space, for example using larger conference tables.

Are masks required at the stand? If so, are there exceptions (e.g. when sitting at a table during a meeting with sufficient distance or separated by a plastic screen)?

The current regulations require that masks be worn in all indoors areas. This also applies to exhibition stands. It is possible to remove the mask for a short period of time, but you must be seated and there must be at least 1.5 metres between you and anyone else at all times, or some form of protective screen must be present.

What happens if one of our staff or a visitor to the fair tests positive?

As is generally true in such cases, the test will be reported to the health authorities who will then decide how to proceed. The operators of the stands at which the person who tested positive spent an extended period of time might be required to identify staff who were also present at the stand. You are therefore required to document the times at which your staff are present at your stand.

Which hygiene and safety rules do I need to be aware of while assembling and disassembling my stand?

The statutory regulations for occupational health and safety apply during assembly and disassembly of your stand. We have listed the relevant information in this PDF.

Please forward this document to the company assembling your stand or any other firm that will be working for you. As the contracting party, you are responsible for ensuring these firms also comply with all rules and regulations.

Catering

Is it possible to have catering at my stand? What must I be aware of if I offer food or drink to guests or staff?

If food or beverages are offered to visitors or employees, the server must always wear a mask. There should be no self-service. Please ensure that areas in which food or beverages are served or consumed are disinfected at regular intervals.

Food or drink should only be offered in pre-packaged portions (no open snacks for self-service). Drinks should also be offered only in smaller bottles or other sealed containers and should be opened by visitors or staff themselves before consumption. Objects (such as bottle openers) should not be handed from one person to the next; if they are, they must be disinfected after every use.

Openly served beverages (coffee, tea) should always be offered by the same person, who should be wearing a mask. The optimal solution would be to use a person trained in catering and COVID-19 regulations who is also outfitted appropriately.

If we have a coffeemaker or an automatic coffee machine at our stand, can it be used by all staff members?

Yes, if everyone adheres to the hygiene rules. Everyone should disinfect their hands each time they are about to come into contact with food or tableware. In addition, the display on the coffee machine should be disinfected after every use, as should any other surfaces that staff members have touched. Only clean cups should be used — no refills of previously used dishes. Masks must always be worn.

It is recommended that a specific individual be assigned this task so that the relevant equipment is only touched by one person.

Where can my visitors and staff consume food and drink?

Since masks must be taken off to eat or drink, the person in question must be seated where the minimum distance of 1.5 metres to others can be maintained at all times or, alternatively, where a protective screen has been installed.

Can I organise a party at our stand or a Happy Hour?

Since it is not possible to comply with the hygiene regulations at parties held at exhibition stands or at receptions where guests are standing, such events will unfortunately not be permitted this year.

What types of catering will be offered at the fair?

Catering options on the fairgrounds will largely be "to go". Any food or beverages purchased can only be consumed in the areas reserved for that purpose after visitors have taken a seat at least 1.5 metres from other guests. The relevant areas can be found in the exhibition halls and at the Agora (outdoors).

Restaurants on the fairgrounds will continue to offer full waited service.

Where can I find further information on catering and gastronomy?

The continuously updated regulations for exhibitors on the subject of catering at the stand are summarised on our website. A detailed FAQ on catering and gastronomy will soon be available for download at the same place.

Frankfurter Buchmesse: "The book industry has passed the Covid stress test but needs to preserve fair framework conditions"

Opening of Frankfurter Buchmesse 2021 / Books are firmly anchored in society / Stable turnover during the pandemic / Freedom of contract conditions for eBook lending in libraries must be preserved

The book industry is optimistic and bursting with enthusiasm at the opening of this year's Frankfurter Buchmesse: "The pandemic has been one of the biggest stress tests in history and we have passed it with flying colours. Publishers, bookstores and book logistic companies have worked hard to stay close to their clients and ensure that books reached people despite these challenging times", said Karin Schmidt-Friderichs, Chairwoman of Börsenverein (German Publishers & Booksellers Association), today at the press conference to mark the opening of Frankfurter Buchmesse.

The crisis has shown how firmly the book is anchored in society. Schmidt-Friderichs: "Social distancing did not mean distancing from books. People used the time at home to read more often. Books can fulfil important needs in challenging times: They provide answers to pressing questions, giving substantiated information in a clear and comprehensive format. A book can broaden our view, open up new worlds and show us other ways of living. It can offer food for thought, give courage and hope."

Thus, the industry was able to conclude the year 2020 with stable revenues. A look at 2021 also gives cause for optimism: across all distribution channels, revenues on the book market had caught up with the pre-Covid level by the end of week 40 and are 0.7 per cent above the revenues of the comparable period in 2019. This means that the chances of a positive annual result are high.

After one and a half challenging years, there are signs everywhere of a fresh start. The book industry can support society on this path and help solve important questions: "Will we succeed in effectively combating man-made climate change? How can we revitalise our inner cities? What solutions can we find in the face of worrying political developments and restrictions on freedom of expression around us? Can we achieve more equality for people regardless of their skin colour, their gender, their sexual orientation, their origin? All these questions are also being addressed in books," says Schmidt-Friderichs.

“Libraries cannot become tax-funded free eBook platforms”

A decisive question for the future of the book industry is the development of copyright. This has been increasingly restricted in recent years. Currently, the book industry is facing the prospect of a drastic deterioration in the framework conditions for eBook lending. The Bundesrat (Federal Council) has demanded that in future, publishers must make all eBooks available to libraries for lending from the day of publication. There is great concern that the future Federal Government will adopt this proposal. Until now, publishers and authors have had the freedom to make a few books available for free lending only after a certain time frame, in order to secure the crucial revenue from sales within the first twelve months. If readers can already access the eBook library version free of charge from the moment a book is launched on the market, publishers and authors lose this commercial revenue opportunity. While libraries already account for almost half of eBook consumption, publishers already make only 6 per cent of their eBook revenues from this.

Schmidt-Friderichs continued: "We are committed to preserving the freedom of contract conditions for eBook lending in libraries. Authors and publishers, i.e., those who earn their living from this, must also be able to do so in the future. It is not acceptable for the state to turn libraries into free eBook platforms financed by taxes. I therefore emphatically support the appeal of the 'Fair Lesen' initiative, in which authors, publishers and bookstores have joined forces on this issue. Their aim is to show that legal regulations such as a compulsory licence for eBook lending in libraries are endangering the book market and destroying important sources of income for authors, publishers and the book trade".
