(Lost) pages of my life

Gabriela Mistral, compilación, notas y referencias Jaime Quezada

Description:

Here is "Mistral, the midwife and messenger, an old Creole woman, playful: that is her flaw and her virtue." This is how Gabriela Mistral defines herself, very impersonally but personally, revealing in a playful epistolary phrase that "being me" without any consideration, except for her always seeing, feeling, and thinking freely about the world. A phrase that reveals her temperament and human passion and that bears witness to her writing in these scattered pages of varied lessons,...

Author Biography:

Gabriela Mistral was a Chilean poet and diplomat born in Vicuña in 1889 and died in New York in 1957. She received the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1945, becoming the first Latin American to achieve this honor. Some of her poetic works are Desolación (1922), Lagar (1954),...

A single breakdown

Armando Uribe Arce

Description:

A single breakdown, a new posthumous and unpublished book by the National Literature Prize winner. A formidable text filled with Uribe's unique language. It consists of selections from notebooks from 2011, in which the poet left poems and his thoughts on life, love, and death.

Author Biography:

Armando Uribe (1933-2020) was a poet, essayist, diplomat, and lawyer specializing in Chilean mining law from the so-called literary generation of 1950, winner of the 2004 National Prize for Literature. His poetic work is characterized by pain, the persistence of death, and awe in the face ...

Allende's Children

Our history is memory. Collective biographies.

Myriam Carmen Pinto

Description:

These stories and testimonies address experiences of struggles that took place within Chile during the Popular Unity government, the civil-military dictatorship, and the post-dictatorship period. Together, they construct a collective memory that reveals the repressive scaffolding of a terrorist state; individual and collective experiences, and lessons learned in exile; the process of rearticulating the social fabric and the return of the historical left; rejection of the model and...

Gabriela Mistral. The poets have chosen you

Gabriela Mistral

Description:

"Poets reading and choosing Mistral's poetry". Something unique, in that this reading makes it possible to design for the first time an architecture of Gabriela Mistral's poetry from her various books, constructed by the poets themselves. It is a novel selection, where poetry becomes central and endogenous, to acquire a greater vitality since her work stands out through the reading made by great Chilean poets, such as Raúl Zurita, Oscar Hahn, Carmen Berenguer, Andrés Morales, Jaime...

Description:

It's hard to leave childhood behind when uncertainty and sacrifice lie ahead. When you have to get straight A's in Maths so your mum won't get angry, or look after your sisters and help out around the house. However, there is hope in the 7th grade, because growing up also means being able to go out with boys, be a Technotronic dancer and aspire to be like Jane Eyre, as well as wearing tops and makeup. And above all, it's comforting to know that you're not alone, as all your classmates ...

Knives

Andrés Kalawski

Rights Information:

World rights help apart from Spanish CL, AR, CO, UY

Description:

In the world of Mario and Elena—a strange, ominous, and delicate alternate world to our own—there are silent trainers, guards with shovels, cassava seekers, gardeners. Dancers high above direct the flow of traffic, and sleepers drift in the water. Teachers and wandering agreement-seekers move almost exclusively through tunnels. People nourish themselves with white olives, sea berries, mountain celery, saltwort, slices of camel. Foods from a near future, perhaps. And in this dystopia,...

Author Biography:

Andrés Kalawski (Santiago de Chile, 1977) is a playwright, professor, children's book author, and holds a PhD in History. He has premiered a dozen theatrical works, including the acclaimed Niño Terremoto and Mistral, Gabriela (1945). In 2012, he will debut Eloisa, a...

Andrés Nazarala

Rights Information:

Non-Spanish rights available

Description:

Hospitalised for diabetes, 62-year-old film critic Aldo Romero, who loathes his job, reflects on his memories and favourite films as he witnesses his own decline. Besieged by the imminence of death, his thoughts jump from unfulfilled dreams to quotes from authors, and from the desire to smoke to the endless pursuit of escape. Both subtle and hilarious, Andrés Nazarala interweaves pieces of an apparently dull life with the pleasures and annoyances derived from overexposure to the...

Author Biography:

Andrés Nazarala (Valparaíso, 1976) is a film critic, writer and filmmaker. He has worked for national and foreign newspapers. He has been appointed as a jury member at international festivals such as Toronto, Moscow, San Francisco, Montreal, Mar del Plata and Seattle, among others. In...

Magazines and literary publications during the dictatorship in Chile (1973–1990)

Horacio Eloy

Description:

The publication of this book is the culmination of a long process. In it, I have sought to convey, albeit partially, the history of certain literary publications and to allow them to speak for themselves in their context, in the press of the time, in interviews, reviews, and commentaries, recounting their evolution through their editorials, poems, manifestos, stories, and chronicles—in short, in the words of their creators, many of whom remain faithful to the “craft” they began in...

Author Biography:

Horacio Eloy (1955-) is a Chilean Poet, short story writer, cultural manager, and teacher. He is the author of the following books: Tres Poetas (1985), Paisajes de Milagros (1990), El cielo a pedazos (1995), Rituálca de despedida (2001), Última función (2012), and his...

The Last Neographer

Ignacio Álvarez

Rights Information:

Worldwide rights available, except for the Spanish language

Description:

The events recounted in this novel did not happen in real life. And more precisely, they did not happen in the city of Valparaíso, sometime between 1860 and 1899. This is the story of Juan Marín: for some, many—almost everyone—the Beast. A man who wanted to disappear, and for whom falling into deep, immense silence felt something close to that. Juan Marín gave up everything he had: his memory, his freedom, his understanding. If you can forgive him, please do.

Author Biography:

Ignacio Álvarez holds a PhD in Literature and is a professor in the Department of Literature at the University of Chile. He is the author of Novel and Nation in 20th-Century Chile: Literary Fiction and Identity (2009), and has edited critical editions of the Complete Works of...

The Novel of the Heart

Roberto Castillo

Rights Information:

Worldwide rights available, except for the Spanish language

Description:

The author of Muriendo por la dulce patria mía (Dying for My Sweet Homeland) and Muertes imaginarias (Imaginary Deaths) returns with a bold, urgent novel—fast-paced and richly layered with multiple spaces and characters—shaped after witnessing a heart transplant from just one meter away. Here, the action seems to pulse—systole, diastole, systole, diastole—as hearts are lost, stolen, revered, harvested, and saved. And by the grace and power of literary imagination, a web of improbable...

Author Biography:

Roberto Castillo Sandoval (1957) holds a PhD in Literature and Romance Languages from Harvard University and lives in Haverford, Pennsylvania. He is the author of the novels Muriendo por la dulce patria mía (Dying for My Sweet Homeland, Laurel, 2017) and Muertes imaginarias...

The Red Garden

Sebastian Alonso

Description:

In the midst of the military dictatorship, The Red Garden has endured thanks to the collective efforts of its inhabitants. Led by La Maribel, this space offers refuge to a group of individuals who must learn to survive in a world that marginalizes them and wants them dead. But an unexpected visit will put at risk the peace they have managed to build—and threaten to destroy everything.

Author Biography:

Sebastián Alonso (Chile, 1985) is a screenwriter and author. His works El Jardín Rojo and La noche errante explore themes such as memory, magical realism, religious syncretism, and queer identities. He is currently working on his upcoming novels: La yerma santa and La...

The Wind Knows My Name

Isabel Allende

Description:

The Wind Knows My Name is a novel by Isabel Allende that tells the story of Samuel Adler, a six-year-old Jewish boy whose father disappears during Kristallnacht in Vienna, 1938. The novel seeks to lead the reader to reflect on issues such as uprootedness, solidarity, compassion and love, through these two stories that intertwine like two branches of the same tree. The author considers the humanitarian refugee crisis on the US-Mexico border to be tragic and dramatic, a crisis that...

Author Biography:

Isabel Allende was born in 1942 in Peru, spent her early childhood in Chile and lived in various places. After the 1973 military coup in Chile she went into exile in Venezuela and since 1987 has lived as an immigrant in California. She began her literary career in journalism in Chile and...

Absolum

Carlos Lloró

Rights Information:

Worldwide rights available by Queltehue Ediciones

Description:

Absolum, by Carlos Lloró, is one of those rare works where, although it may seem that a particular event is being narrated, the act of reading is itself the event. It is not a crime report—yet it is one. Just as we are not merely reading a book of chronicles or a manuscript, but testimonies of the now and the after—or rather, of a time outside of time. Something has happened, and we are part of that mystery. Lieutenant Alsacio Aravena’s Report places us at a point of convergence by...

Campo, ruido, ausencia

Catalina Infante

Rights Information:

Worldwide rights available

Description:

Campo, ruido, ausencia is a polyphonic novel that weaves together the voices of three women in their forties, each confronting the echo of their own desires in a rural landscape that isolates them as much as it reveals them. Lucia flees a life that left her hollow: post-pandemic depression, a failed business, and the consuming demands of motherhood. She seeks silence in the countryside—but finds only questions. Claudia, the land's original owner, lives among walnut trees and ghosts....

Author Biography:

Catalina Infante Beovic is a Chilean writer, editor, and journalist. She has published fiction, essays, and children's books, and was twice nominated for the Altazor Awards and selected for the IBBY Honour List. Her short story Helechos was nominated for the Pushcart Prize, and her...

Child Poets

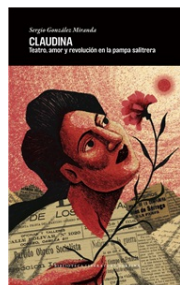

Florencia Martinez

Description:

Child Poets is a play based on milestones from the childhood of Gabriela Mistral, Vicente Huidobro, and Pablo de Rokha. These three poets, who never met in their childhood, share experiences and play together on a journey from Santiago to Licantén and then to the Elqui Valley, traversing Chile at the end of the 19th century. The play brings us closer to them and reveals their fears, limitations, and sense of humor in the face of an adult world that imposes its own rules. It shows us...

Claudina. Theater, love, and revolution in the nitrate pampas

Sergio González Miranda

Description:

Claudina is both a protagonist and a privileged witness to that world in which workers edited and wrote newspapers and women workers organized plays, to be distributed and performed in every corner of the desert and beyond. Workers who could not conceive of education and culture divorced from the transformation of the system that, in the first instance, placed them in a position of social subordination, but not of passivity. This novel represents for us the same thing that Claudina's...

Description:

When we think of explorers' adventures, we often do so through the colorful mechanisms of imagination and dreams, rather than the cold literalness of scientific reports. A white coldness, one might say, that corresponds to the object of the journey undertaken by writer Oscar Barrientos Bradasic, who draws from multiple myths, stories, maps, songs, TV series, films, and various other references to tell us how Antarctica has been represented from Antiquity to the present day. He weaves...

If Duchamp Dies

Paula Arrieta Gutiérrez

Description:

Si muere Duchamp is a feminist and critical essay that questions the canonical authorship of Marcel Duchamp's iconic artwork Fountain. Through meticulous research and a personal, reflective tone, Paula Arrieta revisits the possibility that the true creator of the piece was Dadaist artist Elsa von Freytag-Loringhoven. The book interrogates the construction of the "male genius" myth in art history and proposes an alternative narrative that restores the overlooked contributions of women...

Missing

Una investigación

Alberto Fuguet

Rights Information:

Worldwide rights available

Description:

Missing is a hybrid novel that blurs the lines between fiction and autobiography, in which Chilean author Alberto Fuguet investigates the mysterious disappearance of his uncle Carlos, who vanished from the family decades earlier. The narrative follows Fuguet's journey—both physical and emotional—as he pieces together fragments of memory, interviews, and speculation to reconstruct his uncle's life and possible fate. Set between Santiago and the vast landscapes of the American...

Validity of the Chilean folkloric Lyre of the 19th and 20th centuries

Anthologist: Diego Muñoz Espinosa

Description:

The origin of Chilean popular poetry dates back to the time of the Conquest. It was then that the romance came to our land in the mouths of soldiers and adventurers, some of whom must have been, no doubt, active members of the Spanish minstrelsy. That is, they came to Chile, under the banners of the Conquest, not only as reciters who kept that popular treasure in their memory, but also as authors of minstrelsy, creators of lyric poetry. The latter are the legitimate forebears of our...
